Yoga in the hills

As the days draw closer to IDY 2025, the excitement and awareness surrounding Yoga is spreading to every corner of the country. Champawat, a picturesque city located between the Sharda River and the Indo-Nepal border—the gateway to the mountains, has also embraced the spirit of Yoga.

With the support of the district administration, Common Yoga Protocol (CYP) sessions are being organised at different unique locations under the IDY 2025 theme, “Yoga for One Earth, One Health.”

These sessions have been held regularly since the beginning of the month. One such location was the Shiv Mandir in Bandela Dhek where a Yoga session was organised by Ayushman Aarogya Mandir on May 5, 2025. A drawing competition and Yoga session were also held at a local school on May 6, 2025. Countdown events for IDY 2025 were organised at several villages and schools on May 7, 2025. This chain of events does not end here, the Police Line in Champawat also hosted a CYP session for police personnels to promote fitness and well-being amid their demanding routines. This session was conducted under the guidance of Dr Anand Singh Gusain, the District Ayurvedic & Unani officer.

Champawat district is actively participating in the IDY 2025 countdown events across villages, schools and offices, inspiring other districts and states to adopt a yogic lifestyle in their daily lives.

If a hilly region with limited resources can integrate Yoga to improve the quality of life, then why can't we? These consistent efforts serve as motivation for others to join the movement and become a part of the IDY 2025.

This initiative aligns with IDY 2025, themed “Yoga for One Earth, One Health,” as highlighted by Prime Minister

Shri Narendra Modi in his Mann Ki Baat address on March 30, 2025. The theme reflects Yoga's role in fostering physical, mental, and environmental well-being, inspired by India's G20 ethos of “Vasudhaiva Kutumbakam” - the world is one family.

India's wellness scene is being re-set with the technological innovations, and Yoga is at its heart. From apps to studios, there's a Yoga solution for everyone.

Dr Ananda Balayogi Bhavanani

Joint Secretary, IYA; Vice President Yogasana Bharat; & Director ISCM of Sri Balaji Vidyapeeth, Puducherry

Growing up in an environment immersed in Yoga and Indian classical arts, how did your early exposure shape your path as a Yogacharya?

I grew up in the traditional Gurukula atmosphere of Ananda Ashram, Puducherry where the art and science of Yoga was a way of life. I learnt Yoga from my Guru-Father Yogamaharishi Dr Swami Gitananda Giri and both Yoga and Bharatanatyam from my Guru-Mother Ammaji Yogacharini Meenakshi Devi Bhavanani. I was nominated as my father's successor at the tender age of 4, and now I'm completing 50 years as lineage holder of this Rishiculture Ashtanga (Gitananda) Yoga tradition. Everything is Yoga for me, and the love for Indian Culture was instilled deeply by my parents.

As a gold medallist in MBBS, how do you integrate modern medical science with traditional Yoga practises in your work?

I serve as Professor and Director of the Institute of Salutogenesis & Complementary Medicine of the Sri Balaji Vidyapeeth, a modern health care university in Puducherry. This is the only place in the world where both Yoga and music therapies are offered free of cost to all care seekers in all departments of medical, dental, nursing colleges as well as through our rural health services. Students from all streams of healthcare receive Yogabhyasa as an academic elective and local communities are served through multiple outreach programs. We have documented all of this through more than 200 research publications in highly reputed journals.

How do you see initiatives like Samyoga – one of Signature Events of IDY 2025 which takes Yoga to groups with special needs – help in advancing the integration of Yoga with public health on a broader scale?

One of our best practices of the School of Yoga Therapy, ISCM of SBV is phenomenal work with the Divyanga community. We offer therapeutic "Divyanga

Students' stress buster: Yoga for surviving exams

Youth, the driving force of our nation, face relentless academic stress from continuous classes, assignments, and exam schedules. This pressure takes toll on their mental and physical well-being.

While academic pressure is persistent, Yoga offers a vital means to manage it. It helps students to cultivate a calmer, more peaceful mind, fostering an optimistic outlook and enhancing overall well-being.

To gather insights into this topic, our team visited some students, and enquired about the role of Yoga in their hectic lives.

Rajeshwari Paswan,
UPSC aspirant

"Being a student can be mentally exhausting and for relief, I turned to Yoga. Over time, I realised that Yoga anchors me in the present, the only place where life truly exists. Yoga reshapes the mental patterns that fuel my anxiety. It took me some good years to understand Yoga. For me, Yoga is not just about flexibility, but a way to create a safe space for myself, appreciate my body and mind, and strengthen my ability to grow and persevere through difficult challenges."

Simran Gupta,
B.Sc Ayurveda, JNU

"I was introduced to Yoga during my school years, and that initial exposure inspired me to begin my own practise. Pranayama marked the starting point of my Yoga journey and it has proven to be highly beneficial, contributing to both my mental and physical well-being."

Shaurya Mohan,
B.Sc Ayurveda, JNU

"I began practising Yoga in class 8th, back in 2018. It played a significant role in helping me lose weight and even contributed to an increase in my height. In class 10th, I contracted COVID-19, and hospital beds being unavailable, I relied solely on Yoga for recovery. Practising Pranayama helped me manage negative thoughts. I firmly believe Yoga is a powerful tool for enhancing one's overall lifestyle."

Shrishti Ojha,
B.Sc Ayurveda, JNU

"I have been practising Yoga since my school days. My interest deepened over time, and I chose to explore it further. Now I am studying Yoga as an academic subject. Yoga helps me stay calm and maintain discipline amid the demands of my busy schedule, which includes intensive studies and back-to-back classes."

Shivani,
B.Sc Ayurveda, JNU

"I began practising Yoga two years ago, and its positive effects have been clearly noticeable, it helped me recover from various health issues, including an eye condition for which I was initially prescribed glasses. Regular Yoga has significantly improved my issues. I am truly grateful to Yoga for playing a vital role in resolving my health concerns."

Dheeraj Kumar,
B.Sc Ayurveda, JNU

"I was diagnosed with nasal polyps at an early age. I was advised to practise Anulom-Vilom to improve my breathing, and it helped me manage the condition. Since then, I have been practising Yoga daily to maintain and enhance my respiratory health."

Ravi Raj,
B.Sc Ayurveda, JNU

"I have been living in hostels since the 3rd standard, where I was first introduced to Yoga. That early discipline continued, and when I chose to pursue Ayurveda, I once again had the opportunity to study and practise Yoga in greater depth. I've rarely experienced confusion or frustration as Yoga has helped me stay focused, calm and grounded."

Having travelled to numerous countries for Yoga conferences and retreats, how has the IDY contributed to spreading awareness of Yoga's benefits?

Before 2015, Yoga and Yoga teachers were only featured on the side-lines of so many events. However thanks to the foresight of our honourable PM, Shri Narendra Modiji, today each and every Yoga teacher and therapist has gained recognition and respect worldwide. Yoga has moved from the side-lines to the spotlight. Yoga is the best gift of India to the world and this gift highlights our adherence to the universal brotherhood dictum, 'Vasudhaiva Kutumbakam'- this is well brought out in this years' theme of 'Yoga for One Earth, One Health',

What advice would you give to the next generation of Yoga practitioners and therapists?

Be authentic, be faithful to the Yoga parampara, and serve humanity with love, compassion and dedication. Indian standards of Yoga and Yoga therapy must be the platinum standards for the whole world.

Prone postures spark strength and calm

Ever noticed how lying face-down feels oddly soothing? In this edition of CYP Decoded, we're rolling out the mat to explore the prone postures of the CYP and they're more powerful than they look. We spoke with Mr Dalip Kumar, Yoga instructor, MDNIY since 2018, who calls these asanas your secret to strength and inner calm.

“Prone postures seem simple, but they work deep,” Dalip says. Shalabhasana and Adho Mukha Naukasana, strengthen your spine, tone your core, and gently massage your organs. They open your chest for better breathing and activate your vagus nerve, melting stress away. Dalip calls Adho Mukha Naukasana his personal favorite: “It balances the body on the navel, works on the core, and aligns the chakras. It's a powerhouse pose,” he shares.

These postures, part of CYP's balanced flow from standing to lying, draw from ancient yogic wisdom and modern science, boosting lung capacity, digestion, and even preparing you for meditation. “When your spine's open and breath's steady, you're ready for deeper practice,” Dalip explains.

New to Yoga? Start slow with easier variations, like alternating legs in Shalabhasana, and always train under a certified instructor especially if you're pregnant or recovering from injury. “Yoga's personal,” Dalip reminds us.

Ready to find your calm? Try prone postures and feel the balance within. Connect with a local teacher and make these asanas your own!

Yoga is more than gentle stretching – it's a powerful workout

Yoga is an art of healing, paving the way for inner growth. It is often perceived as a gentle discipline and acts as a catalyst for holistic health. Recent research reveals that 2 hours of Yoga can match the physical effort of taking 11,400 steps.

Isn't this great news?

Definitely, it is a good one. Yoga may appear less like a typical cardio activity, yet it is more active and engaging. And the best part is the Metabolic Equivalent of Task (MET) value of 2.8 – an impressive statistic that redefines Yoga as a robust form of exercise. This equivalency highlights how even slow, mindful movements can accumulate into significant physical activity, supporting not just flexibility and strength, but also cardiovascular fitness. So, why to walk kilometres and miles away, if you can choose a space with your Yoga mat and take up your drill. Even if it is the Padmasana, Vajrasana, Dhanurasana or the simple Surya Namaskar, all of them play a compelling role and contribute in your metabolic growth.

Yoga's therapeutic effects are well-documented with each of its yogic asanas and practise. It can lower blood pressure, improve circulation, and even aid in the management of chronic conditions, from pain to diabetes and heart disease.

Mentally, Yoga is a proven stress reliever. It fosters mental clarity, emotional resilience, and improved sleep. Its meditative aspects can rewire the brain, boost mood and help us deal with psychosomatic issues promoting psychological well-being. Whether practised for physical vitality or mental peace, Yoga offers a comprehensive path to wellness.

On a beautiful day, Andaman and Nicobar Islands echoed with a harmonious blend of peaceful breath and Yoga movements, as the spirit of Harit Yoga came alive. On May 3, 2025, the beautiful surroundings of Biological Park, Chidiyatapu, South Andaman, became a part of the celebrations for the IDY 2025. After the Yoga session, participants took part in a plantation drive, planting endemic and native saplings around the park. It was an act symbolising their commitment to nurturing their own health and that of mother Earth, reinforcing the bond between humans and nature.

This initiative was articulated by Shri A. C. Tilak, Deputy Director, Biological Park, Chidiyatapu and the plantation drive was coordinated by Miss B. Shweta, Camp Officer (Plant Section), ensuring the smooth execution of the event.

Day concluded with a solemn pledge to protect the environment and carry forward the essence of Harit Yoga into local communities, not just for one day, but as a way of life.

The sadhana of Sandhya Dixit: A yogic excellence

Yogacharya Sandhya Dixit
Mentor Yoga, Kaivalyadhama Yoga Institute

In the silent spirit of Sukhasana, where breathe meets awareness, a journey unfolds as a sadhana for Yogacharya Sandhya Dixit.

From the depths of Antaranga Yoga to the wisdom of yogic counseling, her life became a living mantra rooted in tradition and healing.

With an academic background in biology and a deep yearning to become a doctor, little did Sandhya knew that she will step up in the career of Yoga. But over time, her involvement in Yoga led her to Kaivalyadhama Yoga Institute, Lonavala in 1981, pursuing the Diploma in Yoga education. Beginning as a Yoga instructor in 1982, she became a guiding force in yogic education, shaping minds in courses ranging from Pranayama to Yoga therapy. Her impact extended beyond India's borders, echoing through studios in China, Macau, the UAE, and Turkmenistan—where through each session she transmitted Indian yogic heritage.

For over four decades, Sandhya dedicated her life to teaching Yoga across India and abroad. Her teaching spanned prestigious programs, from postgraduate diplomas to advanced teacher training programmes.

On the occasion of first IDY 2015 she was invited by the Consulate General of India, Guangzhou, China in June 2015 to observe the first India–China Chengdu International Yoga Festival in the city of Dujiangyan. Since then, she taught various aspects of Yoga therapy and yogic science to Chinese students through workshops till 2019. Apart from teaching Yoga, she helped craft syllabi, and designed senior citizen Yoga programs for the Ministry of Ayush. She also developed effective and novel techniques to train people in Shuddhi Kriyas.

Sandhya was awarded with the Prestigious "Swami Kuvalyananda Yoga Puraskar" by Hon'ble Governor of Maharashtra, Shri Bhagat Singh Koshiyari in 2021, for her outstanding and selfless contribution to Yoga.

She says, "Just try Yoga once, and then you will love it forever, understanding its benefits and the magic of its healing."
